Property Taxes in New York Communities

New Yorkers pay some of the highest property taxes in the nation. However, property tax burdens within the Empire State differ widely.

Property owners outside New York City pay taxes to at least three different jurisdictions – counties, towns or cities, and school districts. Villages and special districts can also levy separate taxes. As a result, multiple combinations of property tax bills can be found in a single town.

This report, based on data collected annually by the Office of the State Comptroller, makes it possible to easily compare taxes in almost every locality¹ in New York State. Focusing on the effective tax rate allows taxpayers and government officials to establish performance goals and benchmarks for their communities.

A taxpayer's "all-in" property tax bill is often a key factor in where people choose to live and where businesses choose to locate.

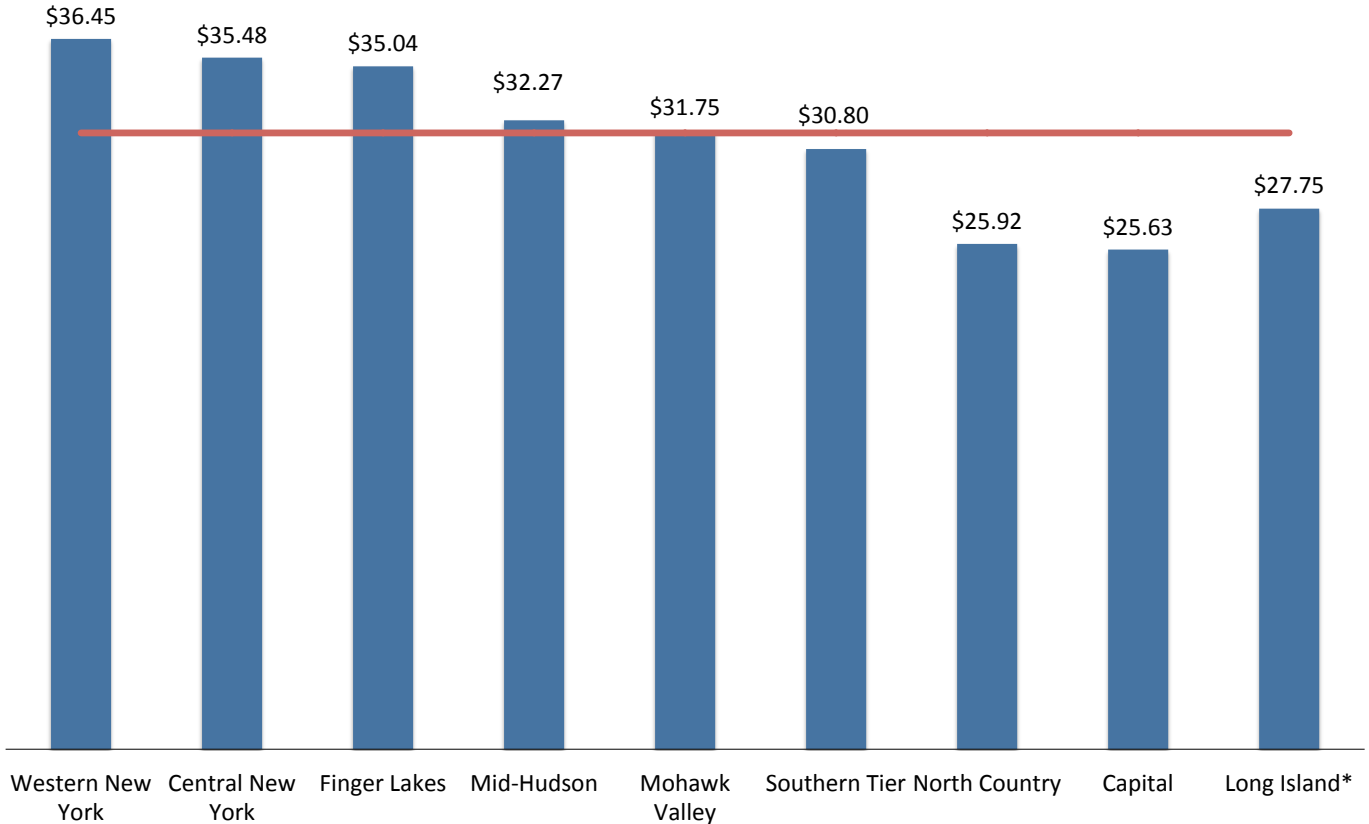

The "all-in" property tax bill is often a key factor in locational decisions by individuals and businesses. In addition, the tax data point to an inverse relationship between effective tax rates and property values, with high effective rates often correlating to low median home values.

This report uses the most recent data reported to the state Comptroller, reflecting taxes levied during each local government's 2014 fiscal year. The tables on the following pages list the top and bottom 20 effective property tax rates, by region, throughout New York, and the top and bottom 20 tax bills across each region based on a locality's effective property tax rate and median home value.

Complete statewide data can be searched and compared using the Empire Center's online Property Tax Calculator at SeeThroughNY.net/Benchmarking.
